

Greetings,

When it comes to dairy cattle and forages, Tom Kestell has demonstrated excellence in the industry. While feeding 67% of the dairy ration in forages, the Kestell's herd average continues to inch up, just surpassing the 44,000 pounds of milk level.

Tom is always learning about forage quality, and not willing to compromise animal performance with low quality or damaged forages. Learn from Tom how he has managed and fed forages making it a key ingredient to building a world class dairy herd.

Tom, his wife Gin, their son Chris and his wife Jennifer, milk 130 registered Holstein cows and farm 600 acres of owned and rented land near Waldo, Wisconsin.

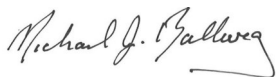

Randy Shaver, UW-Madison Dairy Nutritionist will offer a broader perspective on forages fed to Wisconsin's top producing dairy herds. He will also provide thoughts on feeding 2016 corn silage.

On behalf of the Sheboygan County Forage Council, we invite area farmers, nutritionists and crop professionals to attend this informative meeting.
